

Identifying public sector talent of the future

Over the past four years, ManpowerGroup has been helping young HR professionals accelerate their careers in the public sector through the PPMA HR Star award. Launched in 2013 in partnership with the Public Sector People Managers Association (PPMA), the competition offers coaching to participants that builds upon their skills, knowledge and experience before challenging them to develop their big ideas for the future of public services. One individual is named HR Star winner, but all participants benefit from the experience and exposure of the competition.
