

Insights from the Global Candidate Preferences Survey

Candidates are Consumers, Too

In an era of growing talent shortages, understanding who candidates are, how to attract them and what drives their decision-making is essential to building and sustaining a successful recruiting and retention strategy.

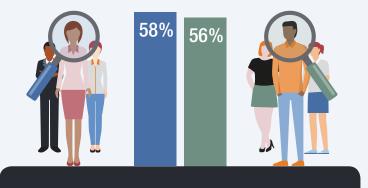

1	APPLY

United Kingdom Insights

Companies should devote equal energy and resources toward the candidate experience as they do to the consumer experience.

58% of candidates

say that a negative experience makes them less likely to buy a company's products or services.

56% of candidates say they are more likely to work for likely to work for a company whose products they buy or use.

Most Impactful Negative Candidate Experiences on Purchase Behavior

Most Impactful Aspects of Employer Brand on Purchase Behavior

Negative interview experience

60%

Global: 59%

Lack of transparency on salary or job description

Lack of employer-employee trust

46%

Global: 42%

Lack of employer-employee communication

Global: 63%

59%

No employer follow up after initial interview	Lack of consistency in words or actions
59%	34%
Global: 57%	Global: 40%
No response to a submitted job application	Lack of transparency
57%	31%
Global: 59%	Global: 43%
Failure to address poor feedback on employer review sites	Lack of social responsibility/giving back
48%	27%
Global: 49%	Global: 26%
	Negative review on employer review site
A friend's negative experience	(e.g., Glassdoor)
47%	27%
Global: 50%	Global: 30%

The Ripple Effects of a negative candidate experience extend far beyond the candidate who experienced it.

69% of candidates say they would tell others about a negative experience.

47% of candidates say the negative candidate experience of a friend would make them less likely to buy a product or service.

5 Practical Suggestions to Strengthen Your Employer Brand

Make a Case for Investment

Proper investment in human resources, the candidate experience, and employer brand will have a positive return on investment in the form of both human capital and revenue.

Relieve Overwhelmed Recruiters

Reposition the HR function as a de facto customer service experience to help transform recruiting into an employer brand and consumer brand building function.

Be Transparent

Transparency is a key value for candidates so there is no substitution for cultivating stronger relationships with candidates and employees.

Cultivate the Consumer Talent Pool

Consumers are a valuable talent pool. In many cases they already understand and share many of the core values of an organization.

Pose as a Secret Shopper

Experience first-hand what candidates experience in the hiring process.

Learn more about how your organization can incorporate candidate preferences into your talent strategy manpowergroupsolutions.com/candidatepreferences